

Tell our legislators to pick on somebody their own size.

Photograph by Richard Bermack

Sadly, health and human services for California's less fortunate children are about to be cut – again. These vital services are needed to keep kids off the street, in school and on the way to successful, happy lives. Help us send a message to California decision makers, that while the current budget crisis is extremely challenging, it would be extremely unfair to cut what little is left for our kids.